A believer in omens might make something of the microfilm enlargement's falling to the floor from my office wall.

It is a reverse copy, almost full size of The Herald's second-front page treatment of the Kennedy Assassination and President Lyndon Johnson's abrupt rise to the office that November, 1963, day. Framed in wood and glass, it fell to the floor the other day. And broke.

Lyndon Baines Johnson's heart stopped Monday, amidst his fourth heart attack. He, the 36th President, died at 64, aside his bed. His heart might have, tough as it was, broken earlier at the divisions forcing him out of politics.

His is an incredible story. It is all but anti-climactic that he die quietly during naptime at his Johnson City Ranch. He rose to the political pinnacle in that historic crackle of insanity, bullets which ended John Kennedy's aspiration and propelled John Connally into history and Lyndon Johnson into a bereft White House.

In a manner of speaking, this Texas giant inadvertently climaxed a contentious public career in what some consider Texas style. . . . violence.

Mr. Johnson was a populist, larger than life, a respectable Texas image despite political rancor in 1948, which catapulted him to a Senate majority leadership, a presidential bid and a vice-presidential nomination and election.

Whatever reasons for those bullets fired in Dallas, if any, it was Lyndon Johnson who developed the Kennedy aspiration, who passed the most social legislation, who amplified the intent of the Emancipation Proclamation, who misread domestic history while he, to use Robert McNamera's term, "escalated" Vietnam into a major Asian land war, who, without public forewarning, gave up power political enemies swore he could not, and abdicated the presidency for Vietnam peace.

Lyndon Johnson was at least as dynamic as Andrew Jackson, the only precedent in style before him in the White House. Lyndon Johnson would like the comparison. Jackson was a great president as LBJ hoped history will find him.

History is not like that framed page of tragedy which fell to the floor. It requires years and research through tons of manuscript and records that fill the Lyndon Johnson Library in Austin. That page was but a capsule of this century's greatest news story. A man's life, particularly a man like Johnson, the enigmatic persuader, power broker and school teacher-become president, deserves distance. And time.

I saw him at dedication services of the Cameron National Guard Armory in 1959. And the presidential aspirant was evident in the futuristic challenges he adlibbed after warming to the occasion.

I saw the chaos in the great hall in Dallas which Kennedy and Connally and Johnson never reached, only raced by on Stemmons Freeway to Parkland Hospital where, before oath taking, Lyndon Johnson made his first decision as president.

I saw him speak at a Baylor commencement, as President in power after the 1964 landslide.

I saw him accept Texas Press Association's award as "Texan of the Year," along with Lady Bird, a couple of years ago in San Antonio.

I saw him last fall challenge a packed house in Temple on Scott and White Clinic's 75th anniversary, the future characteristically his interest.

Having this small sense of Lyndon Johnson's part in history, I am persuaded the 36th President tried harder to please more people all the time than any before. He was ambitious like any president, abler than most, but with outsize drive that finally killed him.

The political love he won in 1964 became hate in 1968, a pillorying in some quarters exceeded only by the trauma endured by Lincoln and Washington. Lyndon Johnson could not be accused by psychiatrist Rollo May of finding apathy the opposite of love in 1968.

Lyndon Johnson lived two days more than the four years of a second administration he might have sought. Except for Vietnam and the erupting ghettos. One he could handle, two he could not.

His heart, great as it was, driven as it was, stopped. A broken picture frame can be fixed. Lyndon Baines Johnson's place in history, as yet, cannot.

City Eligible For New HUD Program

At Tuesday's city council meeting, Mayor Gene Blake told councilmen of a new federal program the city is eligible for which would mean receiving $124,000 a year for five years.

Cameron is one of 134 cities chosen to start the program called Annual Arrangements Program, administered by the Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The money would be used for local projects and community improvements, Blake said.

The program would be administered through the Central Texas Council of Governments on a regional basis, assuring that there will be no duplications of programs in the region served by CTCOG.

Blake said a planning committee would be set up to submit an overall plan to HUD for the city.

The council authorized the city secretary to write a letter to HUD stating the city's intent to participate in the Annual Arrangements Program.

In other business, council discussed the purchase of a new fire truck with a representative of a truck manufacturer. He told the council cost would be anywhere from $26,000 to $30,000, depending on equipment, and would take about a year to fill the order.

A meeting will be held with the fire chief and president of the fire department to draw up specifications for the truck.

Council approved appointment of five men to the board of appeals for the dangerous and unsafe buildings ordinance which will be passed by council.

Approved were Charles Brady, Allen Dodson, Lewis Johnson, Albert Matula and Walter Wallace.

Bids were opened for two new dump trucks and a new police car. Low bids were awarded for all three to Hefley-Stedman Motor Co. The two dump trucks will be purchased for $11,822 out of revenue sharing funds, as will the police car for about $3789. The old police car will be kept and used for the night watchman.

Council discussed a letter from Edwin Bigbee, city code inspector, dealing with the $3000 tax exemption for persons over 65 years old.

The city can, upon petition, grant the exemption, but the mayor emphasized that the city could not stand a tax increase at this time, which would be necessary if the exemption were granted. He said it would jeopardize the city's payment on its present bonded indebtedness.

Council voted to take the suggestion under advisement to see what effect it would have on tax rates.

City Atty. Ed Magre has prepared forms to be used by the city in acting on delinquent taxes. Plan is to take some of the oldest delinquent tax property and notify owners of the city's plan to clean up the property, if the owner does not. The city will take possession of the property if necessary.

Council also passed a resolution commending John Andres for his long, 25-year service as the city fire marshal and fire deparment secretary.

Officials View Downtown Urban Renewal

Officials from Lancaster, Texas met with Cameron city and urban renewal officials Monday to review the local urban renewal project and discuss plans for a similar project in Lancaster.

Ken Brown, executive director of the Lancaster Urban Renewal Agency, headed the five man team that toured remodeled buildings in Cameron and discussed plans for the center-block mall and parking area.

Procedure and problems encountered in the Cameron Urban Renewal project were discussed in a meeting with Lancaster officials at the First National Bank conference room Monday afternoon.

Speaker Praises Clinic In Outreach Program

"Milam County Outreach Clinic is a splendid example of what can be done when county officials and Austin State Hospital personnel work together for a community mental health program," Dr. Luis H. Laosa, Superintendent of the Austin State Hospital, said here Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Laosa was guest speaker for a program on "Mental Health: A New Role in the Community" co-sponsored at Cameron Public Library by Cameron History and Delphian Clubs. Included in the audience of about 80 were county officials, Outreach Clinic staff and board and representatives of Cameron Ministerial Association. He was introduced by Mrs. William Wallace, local Outreach Clinic director.

Dr. Laosa said the Austin State Hospital had made drastic program changes in the last 5 years in an attempt to maintain patients in their local communities. "Hospitals where patients are isolated behind high walls are no longer considered effective," he said.

He said the object of the community outreach clinic was to raise the level of mental health in the community through a three fold program:

1. To eliminate unhealthy forces in the community such as isolation of elderly from the main social stream.

2. Finding people suffering from mental illness and establishing treatment.

3. Rehabilitation for former hospital patients so that they can return to the community.

"The outreach program depends on all resources of the community not merely the medical resources," Dr. Laosa said. "It must work also with the non - professional that troubled people turn to in the community."

He said mental health in a limited sense was thought of as the absence of mental illness. "In a broader sense," Dr. Laosa said, "Mental Health suggests the capacity of the individual to make decisions and deal with problems within the framework of his community."

He also pointed out the need for education to prepare individuals for retirement. "We are taught to deal with all stages of growing up, educated for adult roles, but not for the drastic change that comes with retirement."

Kubiak To Speak At PTA Meeting In February

Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, the new chairman of the House Education Committee, will address the Cameron Parent - Teacher Association Thursday, Feb. 1.

The P-TA will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Ben Milam cafeteria, according to program chairman Bill McCutchen.

The Cameron speech is one of two talks Kubiak will make during February to school organizations in Milam County. On Feb. 15 he will address the Milam County Texas State Teachers Association in Rockdale.

Kubiak is a three-term House member and a former school teacher.

He was appointed chairman of the House Education Committee, one of the Legislature's major permanent committees, by Speaker Price Daniel Jr. when the 63rd Legislature convened earlier this month.

Alcoa Patents New Process For Aluminum Smelting

PITTSBURGH, Pa.

Aluminum Company of America disclosed it has applied for patents on the Alcoa Smelting Process, a new electrolytic method of producing primary aluminum. The new process is expected to reduce by as much as 30 percent the electricity required by the most efficient units of the Hall process presently used worldwide.

Alcoa board chairman John D. Harper announced the development at a press conference, in company with president and chief operating officer W. H. Krome George and Dr. Eric A. Walker, vice president- science and technology.

Alcoa's chief executive officer said the new process uses a system free of undesirable emissions and affords a superior employee working environment. In addition to requiring less energy, the process is more tolerant of power interruptions than is the Hall process, and can accept power reductions during daily periods of peak demand by the public. Its total operating costs are expected to be lower. It also will permit plants to be located on smaller sites, with greater location flexibility, he added.

In making the announcement, Harper stated that the Alcoa Smelting Process has been tested in a full-scale developmental unit. He said it is now ready for the next step, which is to evaluate the process in a first unit of a commercial plant, which will take three to four years.

"The announcement was made at this time," he added, "because information about the process will soon be made public here and abroad in patent descriptions. This information, which will be revealed piecemeal as patents issue, will not adequately explain the status of our work, the timetable, or the commercial significance of the process.

"We have traditionally given research priority to improving the Hall process," Harper said. "Through this work, we have approached the theoretical efficiencies possible with that process. Nonetheless, we have sustained that work, and expect to continue it.

"However, about 15 years ago we decided also to undertake a major program to develop alternate electrolytic or other type processes offering greater potential efficiencies and superior environmental features. In this time, we have invested approximately $25 million in developing the Alcoa Smelting Process, the most promising alternate to the Hall process we could discover.

TO KEEP POTLINES

"While we have great hopes for the new process, it should be clearly understood that this does not signal any overnight obsolescence of established facilities for smelting aluminum," Harper said. "For example, we are presently installing a large Hall-type potline at Massena, New York, and have just started operation of a 100,000 - ton Hall-type line at our Tennessee operations. Should we add capacity at existing smelters, it would probably be Hall-type equipment."

However, Harper added, Alcoa has begun to design and engineer the first unit of an Alcoa Smelting Process plant. This first unit will have an initial capacity of 15,000 tons a years of primary aluminum, with an ultimate design capacity of 30,000 tons. Target date for completing the initial phase is 1975. Completion of the entire plant, presently conceived as a 300,000 - ton capacity facility, will be contingent on construction and operating experience with the first unit. The site, presently undetermined, would be in the United States, he said.

"If the first unit performs as we expect and hope, and if subsequent full commercial operation confirms this," Harper said, "we believe future Alcoa smelters would be built to use the Alcoa Smelting Process."

Harper explained that as in the Hall process, the new method employs alumina, the oxide of aluminum, which currently is refined from bauxite ore. Alumina obtained from ores other than bauxite will be equally suitable for the new process, he noted.

In the Alcoa Smelting Process, alumina is combined with chlorine in a reactor unit which chemically converts the oxide to aluminum chloride. The chloride is electrolytically processed in a completely enclosed cell which separates the compound into molten aluminum and chlorine. The latter is continuously recycled back to the reactor in a closed loop.

In the traditional Hall electrolytic process, alumina is dissolved in molten cryolite, a fluoride chemical which has become increasingly scarce and costly. Alcoa's new process not only disposes of the need for cryolite, but also the expense of containing fluoride emissions.

A Few More Days...

Lyndon Johnson quit public life while still president to try to close down the Vietnam War. It is still going, but apparently closer to an initialed truce than in four years of trying.

South Viet Premier Nguyen Van Thieu has agreed to the present proposal. He has balked in the past. President Nixon may have announced by this reading that a truce will be signed today, January 25.

Henry Kissinger is authorized to bring off the agreement in Paris. Hanoi apparently is ready if Saigon is.

This is the stage Lyndon Johnson set. It is a set the Viet Cong played on for most of those four years, regardless of bombing, offensive or counter offensive. They have paid a great deal for this time at the Paris Peace Table. So have we. But apparently dealing from strength, the only way a U.S. president can deal, and both Mr. Johnson and his successor believe this, has finally turned things toward settlement.

It took a long time, but to Mr. Nixon's credit it is finally coming off. And to Mr. Johnson's credit, he tried to turn off a war he raised to monumental proportions.

Lyndon Johnson would have liked to live a few more days to see this thing resolved.

A Good Newspaperman ...

Jim Russell sold The Belton Journal the other day to a friend of The Herald, Larry Ingram, former editor of the Temple Telegram.

Jim will continue to write his unique column, composed at the linotype by the writer who also can run a linotype keyboard.

The Journal is older in continuous name than your Herald, founded as the Centinel in 1860. The Journal began under that masthead in 1866.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

PLOT TO CRIPPLE U.S. OIL PIPELINES AIRED

SENATOR JAMES O. EASTLAND (Miss.)" . . . On March 16, 1970, in a speech before the Senate, I alerted my colleagues and the Nation to a serious danger to the internal security of our country, that was about to result from the return of a group of young Americans who had gone to Cuba for the alleged purpose of cutting sugar cane and thus helping the Communist regime that strangles the freedom of the island Republic.

"The group called itself THE "VENCEREMOUS BRIGADE." It has grown from an initial membership of 213 to nearly 2,000 . . .

"Diaries of the brigade members indicate that the Cubans held seminars where Latin America, African, North Vietnamese, and Vietcong guerrilla experts lived, worked, and gave live performances of their skills. . .

"A group of Venceremous Brigade organizers held a "working seminar" with a workers' committee of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Organizing Committee. Two of the items on the agenda of the meeting involved the exchange of information and show of solidarity with UFWO workers." . . .

"Members of the Venceremous Brigade, according to their diaries made it possible for Van Ba to cross the border from Canada into Detroit for the on-the-spot inspection of what he considered the "enemy camp."

"Brigade members have been arrested in Massechusetts, and in California, and elsewhere, for the possession of explosives and manufacturing of bombs. Others have infiltrated computer data centers of oil companies and were found in possession of maps of pipelines with strategic locations marked in red pencil . . .

"The danger is by no means past . . .

"I ask unanimous consent that the list of Venceremous Brigade members be inserted at this point as a part of my remarks . . .

"In compliance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing, I have obtained from the Government Printing Office an estimate of the cost and length of this insert. They have informed me that the article will take up approximately 10 pages at a cost of $1,700. Notwithstanding the two-page rule of the Joint Committee on Printing, I request that the materials be inserted into the Record."

There being no objection, the proceedings were ordered to be printed in the Record. (The names and address of every member was printed.)

* * * * *

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOT COMMENT

The VENCEREMOUS BRIGADE have members in nearly every State, with New York, Massachusetts and California having the greatest number. Maine, Montana, Delaware, and Rhode Island have at least 5 members.

Georgia and South Carolina were the only Southern States without a member.

New Orleans Wonders About 'Phantom Sniper'

By Jim Killpatrick

NEW ORLEANS

The "phantom sniper" of the Howard Johnson Hotel roof has eclipsed the conspiracy theory here as police technicians sifted evidence gathered from the fire and bullet-scarred building.

People here have not forgotten that it was New Orleans Attorney - General Jim Garrison who six years ago roused worldwide controversy over whether Lee Harvey Oswald was alone responsible for the shots which killed President Kennedy or whether he was a member of a gang of conspirators. Garrison was discredited but the question mark remains in many peoples' minds to this day.

People on the street and in the tourist bars and restaurants of the French Quarter are not so concerned about whether the 28 - hour siege which resulted in six dead and 21 injured was part of a conspiracy by "an underground national suicidal group bent on creating terror in America." They want to know whether there was one or more snipers on the hotel roof. And if there was more than one, where did he go?

Detectives were checking cartridge cases collected from the hotel to see if they could be traced to more than one weapon and other officers double - checked descriptions given of the gunman by policemen and hotel --descriptions which varied widely as to size and clothing worn.

Opinion on the street was almost evenly split between those who said that no one man could have started all the fires and done all the shooting and those who seemed convinced the sniper killed on the roof was the only one involved.

Whether investigation proves the charge valid or not, no one will dispute that the sniping brought terror to the streets of New Orleans.

Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso, a subscriber to the national conspiracy theory, said he has "some evidence of a conspiracy" on a local level, although he carefully avoided trying to link the hotel incident to any national or international group.

Giarrusso seems to be on safe ground as far as part of his conspiracy charge goes. He has ballistics evidence which links the hotel shootings to two previous attacks on police here.

There is still the danger, however, that his case will become mired in the morass of confusing -- and often just plain wrong -- information which has plagued the hotel incident from the start.

The confusion reached its frustrating peak Monday afternoon when police volunteers, their actions being carried live across the country on color television, stormed the roof of the 18-story hotel where one or two snipers were believed hiding in enclosures which house stairwells and elevator equipment.

But no one was there.

The only sniper on the roof was the bullet-riddled body of Mark James Robert Essex, a 23 - year - old service veteran from Emporia, Kansas who came to hate all whites during his service in the Navy.

Essex had been dead for about 17 hours, cut down the night before by police bullets fired from a hovering marine helicopter.

A search of the 300 room hotel started immediately with police using blueprints of the building and its plumbing and air conditioning equipment so as not to overlook any space large enough to hide a man.

This too proved fruitless.

The surprise ending posed an embarassing dilemma for the police. Either they had let a sniper escape from the roof and slip through the more than 200 officers sealing off the hotel, or there was only one sniper and they had been waging a furious gunbattle with each other and the hotel's reinforced concrete walls for 17 hours.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Obstructing an Officer

Without any doubt, punching a policeman in the nose would amount to the crime of "obstructing an officer." But what about the assorted lesser confrontations that arise daily between citizen and constable? Where does the law draw the line?

Generally speaking, you may be guilty of this offense even if you do not resort to any force at all.

Take the case of a youthful demonstrator who "went limp" when the police ordered him to climb into a patrol wagon. Charged later with obstructing an officer, he argued that he could not be punished for simply doing nothing.

Nevertheless, the court found him guilty as charged. The court said his refusal to obey a lawful order not only delayed and obstructed his own arrest but also delayed and obstructed the arrest of others.

Affirmative action, of course, is even riskier. Thus:

A motorist lost his temper when he found a meter maid beside his parked car, writing up a ticket that he felt was unjustified.

First, he refused to accept the ticket. Then, when the meter maid tried to put it on his windshield, he blocked her path and deflected her arm.

A court concluded afterward that these actions, added together, did constitute the offense of obstructing an officer.

This does not mean, however, that a policeman has to be treated with kid gloves. Reasonable remonstrance is within a citizen's rights.

In another case, while a man was being placed under arrest in a tavern, his wife informed the police—with vigor—that they had no right to take him away. Still, she did not interfere physically with the arrest. Nor did she use threatening language.

Haled into court for obstructing an officer, the woman was found not guilty of any offense. The court said:

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

Having visited several big cities recently on the theory a man ought to get off his own place at least once in a lifetime, I now know what the newspapers are talking about when they report the high levels of air pollution in those places, caused, it has been determined, about 90 per cent by automobiles running bumper to bumper through the places.

By late afternoon the air is so polluted from car exhaust you couldn't, if the situation existed in Cameron, see the Courthouse from The Herald office.

Officials are now racking their brains trying to find a solution to the problem. The Governor of Massachusetts has even turned down a billion dollars in Federal highway funds and is trying to ban the building or more expressways, once they are built, are, like new weapons of war, bound to be used sooner or later.

One city is even proposing rationing gasoline as the only way to cut down on so much automobile use, not recognizing I guess that this actually would increase the use of cars as people drove to neighboring cities to stock up on un - rationed gas. Probably the net result would be merely the increase in the sale of barrels.

I've always contended that cities ought to be built out in the country where there's plenty of fresh air, but I haven't been able to get anybody to listen.

The only solution I can think of is a massive educational program to convince people to stay where they are. Show them that a hamburger in Cameron tastes as good as a hamburger in Dallas, that blindfolded you can't tell whether you're eating fried chicken in Boston or Los Angeles, that once you've mastered it there's no longer any adventure in going through another highway interchange, and that if your tube isn't blown you can go to sleep before the same television programs they go to sleep to in New York.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Santa Fe Industries States Net Income

Santa Fe Industries, Inc., for the year 1972 had net income of $81.0 million, or $3.23 per share, Ernest S. Marsh, chairman, announced today.

This was a new record for earnings and compares with income before extraordinary items of $66.6 million, or $2.66 per share, in 1971. After deducting an extraordinary item of $33.5 million, net income for 1971 was $33.1 million. There were no extraordinary items in 1972.

The 21.5 per cent improvement in earnings reflects an increase in total revenues of $76.0 million to a new record of $972.8 million.

Approximately $52.3 million of this increase came from rail revenues, of which $25.6 million was attributable to freight rate increases. Carloadings were up 5.1 per cent over the previous year with substantial increases in vehicles and vehicle parts, forwarder traffic, paper products, cement, potash, and wheat for export, which contributed to a gain in revenue ton miles of 7.7 per cent.

RIGHT TO WORK

In 1963, Wyoming passed a "right to work" law, becoming the 19th State to enact legislation which forbids contracts requiring an employee to become or remain a member of a labor union as a condition of employment. Both the agency shop and union shop are banned by this law.

In thousands of homes and businesses throughout "TP&L Territory," central heating systems, heat pumps, wall and baseboard units and portable electric heaters provide cozy warmth, night and day.

If electric heating kept you warm during the recent cold spell, your electric service bill will be higher. But, think of the many extra hours your electric heating equipment worked and the comfort it provided.

Pollution affects everyone and everything around us. Our daily lives are affected by the quality of our surroundings. An example of this is at Ballinger, Texas where the people were forced to find a new water source after their city lake, which was 35 feet deep, silted completely full in 30 years.

Sediment-silt and mud is the greatest water pollutant by volume. Sediment, besides filling lakes, chokes up rivers and streams causing them to flood more frequently because they have less capacity. Silt also interfers with water purification and sewage treatment.

But sediment is not the only pollutant. Organic wastes - animal and human, can change once clear water in ponds and lakes to slimy useless holes by it fertilizing effect. Solid waste, like open dumps and junkyards, are a blight to the landscape beside being a breeding place for rats and flies.

All of these pollutants can be decreased or completely eliminated by sound conservation measures. Sediment from erosion can be eliminated by ponds, flood control structures, terraces, grass plantings, proper grass management, shaping and vegetating gullies are only a few conservation measures that will eliminate silt as a form of pollutant.

We can keep organic wastes out of our ponds and streams by controlling runoff from feed lots, turkey pens, etc. Treating wastes in lagoons to render them less harmful. Applying wastes as irrigation to pastures helps remove nutrients and bacteria in organic waste. Sanitary landfills provide for a disposal of solid waste. By covering the refuse it is no longer a health hazard or eye sore.

With the use of sound conservation measures we not only protect our environment but benefit it in other ways. We provide for more recreation areas and enhance our wildlife habitat. For more information concerning conservation and pollution, contact your local Soil and Water Conservation District and Soil Conservation Service.

Texas Still Cotton King . . . Weather and Agriculture . . . Milk Production Is Down But Also Shows Gain . . . Planting Dates Set.

Texas will produce almost one-third of the total cotton grown in the nation during 1972. The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes that upland cotton production in the state during 1972 is now estimated at 4,050,000 bales. Nationwide, the total for 1972 is now estimated at 13,472,500 bales.

For Texas, production in 1972 is almost double that of 1971. Yield per acre for 1972 is set at 377 pounds per acre compared with 263 pounds in 1971. Harvested acres are expected to total 5,150,000 compared with 4,700,000 acres in 1971.

The southern High Plains--crop reporting district 1-S--is expected to produce 1,700,000 bales for 1972, or almost 400,000 more bales than the previous season. The Blacklands--district four--is in second place with an expected production of 475,000 bales compared with 356,000 bales the previous season.

Weather of recent days and weeks has delayed harvest on the High Plains. But even so, more than 80 per cent of the crop has been gathered compared to only about two-thirds completion a year ago.

Production of American-Pima cotton in Texas is expected to reach 31,000 bales compared with 35,300 bales in 1971. Yield is expected to average 431 pounds of lint per acre compared with 478 pounds in 1971. Harvest of the crop is virtually complete.

FULL effects of the worst snow storm in Texas in 100 years which occurred recently are still not known regarding agriculture. But losses will be heavy. The oat crop, which had been showing some improvement, suffered from the ice and snow. Citrus harvest has been hampered by the cold wather. Rainy weather halted harvest of cabbage and carrots.

In the coastal bend, spinach harvest is at hand. Vegetable growers in Central Texas are preparing land and applying fertilizer when field conditions permit.

Wheat seeding for the state is complete, and wheat grazing has been restricted due to wet fields. Soybean, grain sorghum, and pecan harvesting are all virtually completed.

The cold, wet weather has been hard on livestock throughout the state. Supplemental protein feeding and haying is widespread over the state.

MILK production in Texas during December was four per cent below a year earlier, but still two per cent above the previous month's production.

Milk production per cow kept for milk averaged 730 pounds per cow during December, which is 30 pounds below a year earlier but 15 pounds above the previous month. Nationwide, milk production during December was virtually unchanged from a year ago. Milk cows on farms during December totaled 12,127,000, a one per cent decline from a year earlier.

PLANTING dates for cotton in the Rio Grande Valley have been announced. Cotton planting can begin as early as Feb. 15 in these counties: Bee, Aransas, Brooks, Duval, Jim Hogg, Jim Wells, Kenedy, Kleberg, Nueces, Webb, Zapata and portions of Hidalgo and Starr counties.

Cotton must be planted by April 20 in those counties. The planting dates are a part of the regulations relating to control of the pink bollworm for the state of Texas.

Farmers Union Protests Increasing Interest Rates

Texas Farmers Union has protested the Department of Agriculture's announcement increasing interest rates on 1973 Commodity Credit Corporation loans. Farmers Union president Jay Naman of Waco charges that the increase will discourage farmers from using the price support program by increasing the cost of those who do by 58 percent.

"At a time when the Department of Agriculture is de-emphasizing supply - management and program payment benefits are being cut, it is unconscionable to think that the Administration would increase the cost to a farmer for his one opportunity to achieve a degree of bargaining power," Naman said.

The cost of the increased interest rate on CCC loans will fall on farmers producing cotton, wheat, feed grains, rice and peanuts. According to Farmers Union officials, the burden will fall most heavily on cotton and rice producers, but could affect producers of all farm commodities that are eligible for price supports.

The amount of usage will depend upon the size of the crop in 1973 and loan levels, but it is generally considered that the elimination of several supply-management features of the farm program will result in excessive production this year.

Cooperative leader and vice president of Texas Farmers Union Joe Rankin of Ralls says that the 2 percent increase in interest could cost one Texas cotton marketing cooperative as much as a million dollars in additional interest this year.

Rankin, who serves as president of the Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, a Lubbock regional cooperative, said, "This increase in interest will fall heavily on the patrons of the regional cotton marketing cooperative, but will equally adversely affect all cotton farmers because their prices will have to be discounted enough by the trade to pay the additional interest on the loans, both Form "A" and Form "G".

Texas Farmers Union has joined the National Farmers Union in calling on President Nixon and Congress to reduce the interest on the commodity loans to the traditional 3 1/2 percent annual rate.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Cotton Meeting Set For County

By Bill McCutchen

An in-depth cotton production meeting is planned for Milam County cotton producers January 29 in Cameron. The meeting will be held Monday afternoon January 29 from 1:30 to 5 p.m. in the Farm Bureau meeting room in Cameron.

The Extension Service cotton team consisting of Charles Cole, Entomologist; Dave Weaver, Cotton Weed Control Specialist; Fred Elliott, Cotton Specialist; and Don Parks, Economist Management, will present the program. The meeting is sponsored by the Milam County Crops Committee and the Milam County Farm Bureau.

The program was set as an afternoon meeting because of the length of the program and the variety of topics to be presented. Topics to be discussed include cotton insect control and pesticide usage; weed problems; herbicides and application methods; cotton varieties; and crop management principles.

These specialists are familiar with Milam County Production problems and the program is geared to help get producers off to a good start on the 1973 crop year.

CONTROL SCALE SOON

Pecan producers and homeowners who need to treat pecan trees for phylloxera and obscure scale should start making plans to apply a dormant oil to their trees. Best results seem to occur when trees are treated just prior to leaf emergence. Use dormant oil at the rate of 3-3 1/2 gallons 97 percent oil emulsion per 100 gallons of water, or 3/4 pint per 3 gallons of water.

SET OUT TREES

Don't delay any longer in putting out trees and shrubs in your home landscape. Winter will be over sooner than most of us expect and planting now will enable you to get a better quality plant at your nursery and allow sometime for root stabilization before spring growth.

If you are considering pecan trees I would suggest using one or more of the following varieties as they have performed well in this area: Desirable, Choctaw, Sioux and Caddo. These varieties have shown acceptable disease and insect resistance and productivity in Milam County.

Persons wishing to plant pears should pay particular attention to fire blight resistant varieties. The Orient and Kieffer have acceptable resistance and are good quality. One should remember that the Kieffer will not self pollinate and two trees would be necessary for production.

If you wish further information on any of these or other varieties I will be happy to discuss them with you.

WASHINGTON

The U. S. Department of Agriculture today announced that loans on all warehouse - stored and farm-stored grains will not be extended beyond current maturity dates.

Following are the grains and crop - years on which loans will not be extended:

WHEAT -- 1971 and 1972 - crops farm-stored; 1970, 1971 - crop warehouse-stored.

CORN -- 1971-crop warehouse - stored.

GRAIN SORGHUM -- 1971 - crop farm-stored; 1971-crop warehouse-stored.

Reseal will not be available for 1972 - crop warehouse - stored grains. The USDA stated that a decision on extension of farm-stored loans on 1972 - crop feed grains is being deferred to a later date.

USDA officials also stated that farmers will have ample time in which to make plans for redemption and use of their reseal grain. Normally, older crops under reseal are dropped as a good management practice. The more extensive number of crops on which reseal will not be offered this coming year also reflects the need to move these reserve grain stocks into use.

USDA officials pointed out that notwithstanding loan maturity dates the long-time provisions of the loan contract give CCC the option to call loans at any time. This provision continues in effect.

As of Oct. 31, 1972, warehouse-stored loans on crop years affected by today's announcement amounted to 27.1 million bushels of wheat, 77.7 million bushels of corn and 31.3 million bushels of grain sorghum.

As of the same date, farm-stored loans amounted to 215.6 million bushels of wheat, 137.3 million bushels of corn, 63.3 million bushels of barley, 133.7 million bushels of oats, 14.6 million bushels of grain sorghum and 7.5 million bushels of rye.

Columnists Label Phillips As Princess Anne's Suitor

By Patrick Massey

LONDON

Ever since the night he stole a kiss by a harbor wall, the gossip columnists have have firmly labelled Lieutenant Mark Phillips as a suitor for the hand of Princess Anne--only daughter of Queen Elizabeth.

The 24-year old cavalry officer stands six feet two inches in his riding boots and is as handsome as any television idol. Though shy, he has a bright smile and engaging manner.

Altogether he is widely regarded as an ideal candidate to woo the girl who is fourth in line for the British throne.

The Phillips family is well off without being excessively rich. They had Mark educated at one of the best schools in England, Marlborough College.

From there he went to Sandhurst Military Academy. After two years training he was commissioned in 1969 into one of the most exclusive regiments in the British army, the First Queens' Dragoon Guards.

This was his fathers' old regiment. Although they still refer to themselves as cavalry, with battle honors stretching back beyond Waterloo, the dragoons gave up horses in 1937. Phillips now does his soldiering in 54-ton Chieftain tanks.

Off-duty, Phillips has never given up horses. They have been a passion with him since early childhood and he now ranks as one of Britains' top riders.

It is an interest strongly shared by the 22-year old Princess Anne. Horse-riding contests first brought the couple together.

For some time they were rivals. There were occasions when the princess won, as she did in capturing a European championship in 1971. But most of the time she was beaten by the young lieutenant.

In 1968, Phillips went to Mexico City as reserve rider for the British Olympic Equestrain team. Then last August he achieved a feat on which Anne had long set her own heart, he was in the British team that won an Equestrain gold medal at the Munich Olympics.

It was shortly after this that newspapers noticed Phillips was spending a great deal of time in Anne's company.

Twice she stayed at the Phillips family home, a 16th century manor in southwest England. Once she attended a ball at the Dragoons' regimental head quarters in Yorkshire and danced with hardly anyone but Mark Phillips.

The speculation grew really brisk when Anne, defying the wrath of Britains' vociferous animal lovers, rode off three times with Mark to hunt foxes.

But what really convinced the columnists of the strength of the romance was when Mark took leave of Anne to join his regiment for a two-year tour in Germany last Sunday night.

A security guard at Harwich, the port from which Mark set sail, spotted the couple exchanging kisses on a quayside.

"A royal marriage must be on now, she doesn't care who knows," gushed columnist Heather Kirby in London Evening News. Other writers agreed with her.

Buckingham Palace preserved its customary silence on the subject of royal romance.

Mark was born on September 22, 1948. Little is known publicly about his life except that it has been blameless and uneventful.

Were it not, Mark would probably have had difficulty penetrating the royal circle. Memories there are still strong on the subject of royal attachments that caused trouble.

'Mobile' Bakery Yields Home-Made Sweets

Baking 180 DOZEN cookies would seem a staggering task to the most efficient cook. Add to that regular orders for pies, cakes and kolaches and you have a glimpse of how Jody Pernice and Jackie Macal spent their pre-Christmas week.

All of this is produced in what the energetic duo call their "mobile" bakery: some days they bake in the Pernice kitchen, other days in the Macals. Eventually they home to settle in a downtown location with a combination bakery and coffee shop which they will call J and J Sweets and Catering.

The bakery partnership all started at the grocery store where Jody (Mrs. Johnny) Pernice worked. "I noticed that Jackie (Mrs. Edward) Macal never bought prepared mixes," Jody commented. "I love to cook and always start from 'scratch' also. It turned out we liked to cook the same way, preferred the same spices and we just decided to cook together."

At first they would get together on Jody's day off and bake special orders. Then as their list of customers grew Jody gave up her job to devote full time to baking. Sometimes, like a recent day when they had orders for 120 kolaches, it means working a 20 hour day. But they vow they love it. "People think we're crazy," Jackie said, "but they don't know how much fun we have."

The secret to their success seems to be a combination of talent for cooking and a creative flare that has produced some unusual sweets such as their Czech sweet roll (similar to a strudel) that includes fresh coconut, pecans, grated fresh apples and raisins in a large crescent roll topped with confectioner sugar glaze.

An no modern short cuts will do. Poppy seed for Kolaches is ground in a 75-year old grinder manufactured in Czechoslovakia. Fresh fruit is purchases in season, frozen and stored for later use.

They know all the extra effort is appreciated. One customer waited over an hour for an order of kolaches to take back home to Houston.

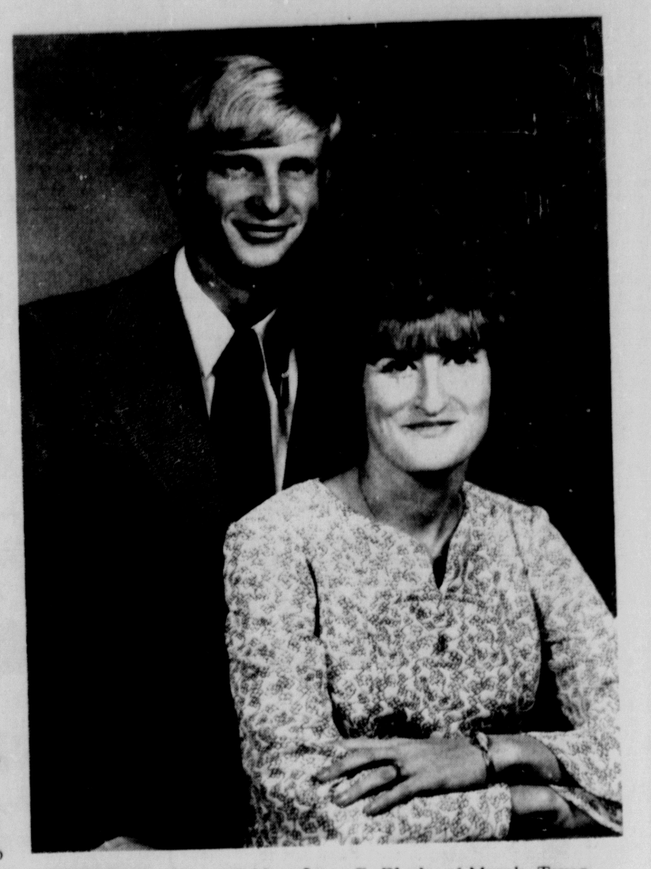
But baking is not their only enterprise. They also cater dinners and parties and have a repertoire of ethnic foods which they serve. Numbers don't frighten them here either. On their first job, the Chamber of Commerce spring banquet last year, they prepared dinner for over 300.

The bakery has become a semi family affair with husbands adding shelves and tables to hold baked goods.

They also lend a hand at large banquets and parties catered by J&J.

Spending so many long hours together in their kitchens have produced no personality conflicts. As Jackie remarked "We're to busy to talk to each other about anything except what we are working on." Friday nights the two couples reserve to go out to dinner together and "catch up on what we've all been doing."

COOKS EXTRAORDINARY - Jody (Mrs. Johnny) Pernice and Jackie (Mrs. Edward) Macal, principles in J & J Sweets and Catering, start a day of baking that may run into the night as orders for their home baked sweets grow.



ENGAGED - Mr. and Mrs. Jerry E. Plachy of Marak, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Jane, to Mr. Richard Brenek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Brenek, Sr. of Belton, Texas. A May 12 wedding is planned at S. S. Cyril and Methodius Church, Marak.

THE CAROUSEL

UN Dinner Possible From Average American Pantry

COLLEGE STATION - A "Mother Hubbard glance" at most of our cupboards would startle that lady of old. She'd find foods that originate in at least a dozen different countries scattered throughout the world. And if she took a hard look at some of our favorite recipes, she might find dishes we prepare daily had beginnings in China, Germany, England or Turkey.

Food is a common bond among all peoples, and our food ties with foreign countries have been growing closer in recent years. In recognition of this, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, has created the following United Nations menu complete with recipes.

UNITED NATIONS DINNER

French Onion Soup
Cantonese Fried Chicken
Whipped Potatoes and Rutabagas (German)
Radish Salad
(Latin America)
or
Nut Salad (India)
Danish Rice Bread
Banana Fool (Africa)

French Onion Soup is said to have originated with King Louis XV, who returned home from hunting late one night and found only some onions, butter and champagne available; he mixed them together, and Voila! soup.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

To make the soup, cut 5 medium-sized (1 ob.) dry onions into thin slices, heat in 3 tbsp. butter in a three-quart heavy pan until the onions are golden in color.

Gradually blend in 1 1/2 quarts bouillon, season with 1 2 tsp salt and 1/8 tsp. pepper.

Bring to boil, cover and simmer about 15 minutes.

Toasted cubes of buttered French bread are usually floated on the soup, and grated or tiny cubes of Gruyers or Cheddar cheese are often served with the soup.

"Chicken is served in practically every country in the world. Not all countries are fortunate enough to have the large supply of frying chicken that we know here in the United States," Mrw. Clyatt noted.

Check your favorite cookbook for a recipe on Cantonese Fried Chicken as most complete cookbooks feature one. Remember to add water chestnuts to emphasize that Oriental flair.

WHIPPED POTATOES & RUTABAGAS

To make this dish (called Kartoffelpuree mit gelben Rublen), one-half pound rutabagas and four medium-sized potatoes are cooked separately, then drained and mashed together.

Whipped in with the potatoes and rutabagas are 2 tbsp. butter, 1/4 - 1/3 cup hot milk or cream, 1 tsp. salt, and 1/8 tsp white pepper.

"Every meal needs something crips and crunchy, so some type of salad or relish is an attractive addition to the meal, whether you live in the United States or another country.

NUT SALAD

A Maiwa Kachumar, or nut salad, is made by combining chopped apple, chopped nuts, quartered figs and dates, shredded fresh coconut and raisins.

These are mixed with a bit of melted butter, and placed on lettuce leaves. Two or three slices of tomato are placed at the side, and a simple salad dressing -usually an oil dressing -- is served with the salad.

More than half of the world's population depends on rice as a major food, and practically every country has its favorite rice dishes. In this UN menu, we are using the rice in a yeast bread.

DANISH RICE BREAD

1 2 lb. rice, cooked
8 c. all-purpose flour
1 pkg. dry or 1 cake compressed yeast
2 c warm milk
1 tsp. salt
3 tsp. sugar

Mash rice while hot and rub it into the flour with the tips of your fingers. Soften yeast in milk. Add salt, sugar and softened yeast to flour mixture. Knead in enough additional four to make dough just soft enough to handle; knead well.

Place in a well-greased, shallow pan. Let rise until double in bulk, then bake in preheated 400 degree F. oven for about 45 minutes or until done. Tap to test. It should sound hollow. This bread is excellent served hot with butter and maple syrup.

And finaliy, the dessert.

In most countries, heavy or whipping cream is used in the dessert preparation, as is done in the Banana Fool, a favorite recipe from Africa.

BANANA FOOL

2 c. banana pulp
4 egg yolks, beaten
2 tbsp. maraschino cherry juice
1 2 c. heavy cream whipped
2 egg whites, beaten
2 tbsp. powdered sugar
1 8 tsp. grated nutmeg

Whip the banana pulp until smooth. Beat egg yolks until thick, add banana pulp and maraschino juice and beat well. Pour into sherbet glasses and chill. Before serving, whip cream and add some to each glass. Whip the egg whites with sugar and add some of this to each glass on top of the cream. Sprinkle a little nutmeg over the top. Serves 6.

RADISH SALAD

Six bunches of radishes are sliced or chopped. Added to the radishes are 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. minced onion, 1 2 tsp. chopped mint leaves, and 1 large tomato, chopped fine.

The dressing is 1/4 cup lemon juice, or if preferred it can be lemon juice with 2 tbsp. olive oil added.

"In India as well as in many other countries where fruits are so readily grown, fruit salads are very popular.

Sports Murray-Go-Round

By Tom Murray

TEMPUS FUGITS:

Time does fly! The Astros' pitchers and catchers will report within the next 30 days to start 1973 Major League baseball. . .Diron Talbert, the 6-5, 255-pound Washington Defensive tackle via Darrell Royal's UT Longhorns, says he and his mates will be back at the top. The Texas City terror gives you one reason for his confidence, despite the lack-lustre Super Bowl performance: "George Allen" . . .Blackie Sherrod says, "Our Neighbor Jones celebrates the Fourth by guying a fifth on the third."

Was Colorado's horrible passing exhibition in the Gator Bowl partly the fault of Frank Broyles? One of those chest-thumping releases out of Fayetteville last spring went something like: "Eddie Crowder may add more passing to his potent Colorado attack. He spent four days at Arkansas spring training, studying the Razorback technique.". . . Only two "foreign" schools have played all SWC football teams. If you guessed Georgia and Georgia Tech you are right. . . Did you know there have been 50 rule changes in college football over the past six years.

STOP THE CARNIVAL!

Lou Maysel, the shrewd Austin - American - Statesman Sports Editor, wonders if cutting out the carnival atmosphere in Super Bowl preparation just might not make for a better game on the field. . . You can bet Broyles goes almost exclusively to the Wishbone-T, after he junks the Pro-type offense his Razorbacks have died on. And, the likely guy to make it go will not be Scott Bull, the Soph who took over for Joe Ferguson to kill Tech. Another Red-Shirt Soph, Mark Miller, is supposed to be the best running QB at Arkansas since Billy Moore in '62.

One SWC Assistant who says there is not a better line recruit in the state than Brazoswoods' Jim Dean also sees him signing with Emory Bellard's Texas Aggies. The 240-pounder's Papa is an Aggie. . . 'Twas interesting to see where SMU's Super Splitend Kenny Harrison is edgy about Dave Smith brining the Wishbone-T to the Dallas Hilltop. He needn't be. With Alvin Maxson and Wayne Morris zooming out of a Mustang Wishbone, those defensive backs are going to take their eyes off the 9.5 Beaumont South Park Flyer whom some call the best receiver ever to come out of Texas schoolboy football. Folks who downplay the passing possibilities of Darrell Royal's concoction practice mythology. And, what would be wrong with Maxson and Morris at Halfback with Kenny at Quarterback? Wow!

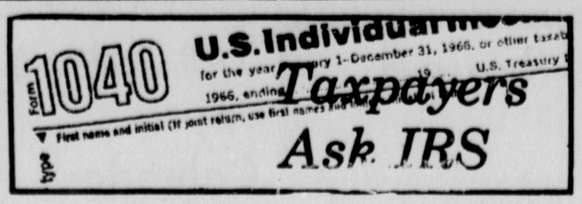
THIS BASKETBALL FEATURE MADE POSSIBLE BY THE ABOVE SUPPORTERS



This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - How can I tell if I'm eligible to use the short form 1040A?

A - Basically, the short form 1040A may be used if all your income was from wages, salaries, tips and not more than $200 in dividends and $200 in interest and you do not plan to itemize deductions.

If you receive the short form in the mail, it was sent to you based on the return you filed last year. If you did not receive a short form 1040A in the mail and want to use it, a copy may be obtained at any Internal Revenue office and most banks and post offices, or you may use the order blank in the form 1040 package to obtain a copy.

Q - Is every taxpayer who is eligible to use the short form 1040A required to do so?

A - No. Use of the short form is optional. If you had sizeable expenses for such items as medical and dental care, interest, taxes, contributions, alimony, child care, etc., it may be to your advantage to itemize deductions. This can only be done on Schedule A of your Form 1040 and not on the short form.

A formula for determining whether or not you should itemize decutions is found in your tax form instructions.

Q - I should receive a refund when I file my Federal income tax return. Can I still designate $1 of my tax towards the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?

A - Yes. Every individual (other than a nonresident alien) may participate in the Presidential Election Campaign Fund if he has a tax liability of $1 or more ($2 or more for joint return filers).

In addition, completion of Form 4875 in your tax forms package to designate the check-off will not change any of the figures on your Form 1040 or Form 1040A.

Q - Have the filing requirements for older taxpayers been changed?

A - Yes. If you are unmarried and 65 or older, you do not have to file a return unless you have a gross income of $2,800 or more. For married persons filing a joint return, the filing requirement is $3,550 if either husband or wife is 65 or older, and $4,300 if bother are 65 or older.

However, if you are self-employed, you must file a return if you had net earnings from self-employment of $400 or more, regardless of your age.

Q - I've retired and eligible to receive the retirement income credit. Will the IRS compute it for me?

A - Yes. If you elect to have the IRS compute your tax and you have a retirement income credit, the IRS will also compute this for you. Just follow the directions in your tax form instructions.

Q - How do I go about ordering free IRS tax publications?

A - Just fill in the order blank on the back of your tax forms package, choosing the form or free publication that you want from the list shown, and send it to the IRS office shown on the package.

Q - Are there any limits on how much you can deduct as a charitable contribution?

A - Yes. In general, contributions to most charities, such as churches, educational organizations, hospitals, etc., may be deducted up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. However, contributions to certain private non-operating foundations, veterans organizations, fraternal societies, and cemetery organizations are limited to 20 percent of adjusted gross income. The organization itself can tell you which of the two categories it falls into.

There are also certain limitations on contributions of property, such as stock. For details, see IRS Publication 526, "Income Tax Deduction for Contributions," available free from your local IRS office.

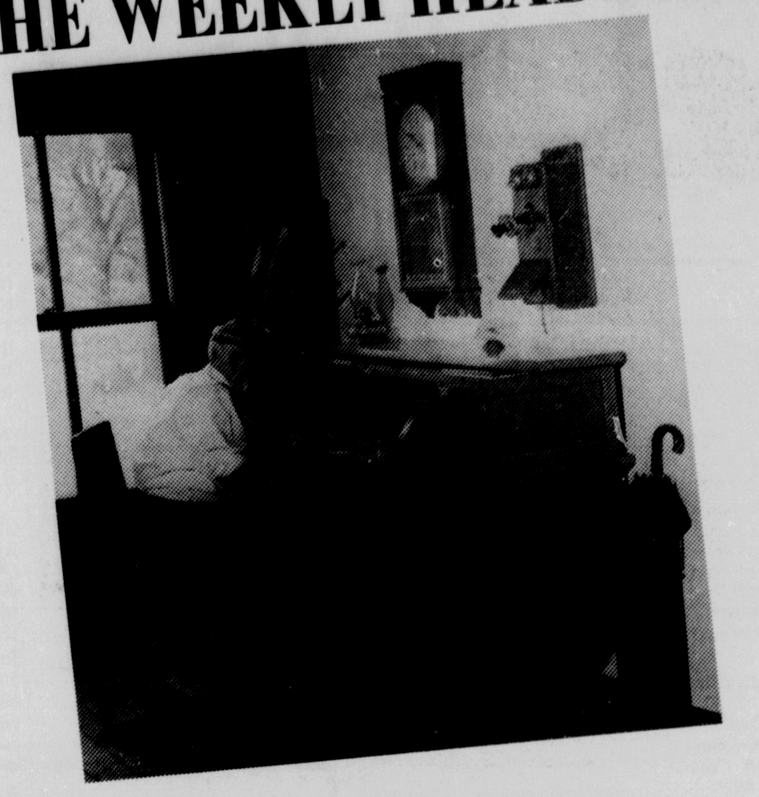
THE WEEKLY HEADLINE



Grandpa fumed when I took this picture. "It won't look natural," he said. "My desk is never clean."

It's clean now. The umbrella stand is empty, the hat rack bare. His old Web press has been retired. But Grandpa's presence lingers on.

For over fifty years he printed the Mayfield Progress, reporting the news with integrity. There were times when he was threatened, cajoled by attempted bribery, menaced by pressure groups, but he stayed true to principle. He was a giant in our town.

What made Grandpa strong in the face of danger — incorrupt when confronted by unscrupulous forces?

His church was the center and circumference of his being. Its truths and its goodness sustained him. It was all that he needed — he remained steadfast and sure.

Your church is eager to help you meet the pressures of your day. Its resources are unlimited and eternal. Go to church, and take your family with you.

CARD OF THANKS-

In loving memory of my grandmother, Mrs. C. N. Noey, who passed from this life Jan. 19, 1963:

Loving Memories

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.

The voice is mute and silled the heart,
That loved us well and true
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place

FEBRUARY

Feb. 11-19 Rio Grande Valley International Music Festival & Opera, McAllen. Now in its 13th year, this event was originated for the purpose of providing Valley students with the opportunity to enjoy live symphony performances. To do this and underwrite most of the costs for the children's concerts, it was necessary to also schedule performances for adults. The result is a schedule of 22 performances—children's, pop, concert, symphony and opera—in five cities during the nine-day festival. Over 20,000 children and 6,000 adults attended last year. This year the San Antonio Symphony will perform in the host city McAllen, in Harlingen, Edinburg, Pharr and Reynosa, Mexico. For all 13 years the cost for children's tickets has remained at 50¢. Adult tickets for concerts are $3.50 and opera tickets cost $3-$12. A complete schedule and tickets may be obtained from the Rio Grande Valley International Music Festival & Opera, P. O. Box 1915, McAllen, Texas 78501.

Feb. 19-22 South Texas Wolf Hunters' Open Bench Show, Derby Run & Running Dog Bench Show, Karnes City. Back in 1922 in Martinez, just east of San Antonio, 41 hounds and 55-60 hunters got together for the first South Texas Wolf Hunters' trials. In 1936 the annual event was the subject of a four-page spread in Life magazine. Life is gone, but the hunt goes on—bigger and better than ever. Last year 200-300 hounds and hunters from all over Texas and seven other states participated. This year's event will be at the Wagner Ranch six miles from Gillett, 20 miles north of Karnes City on State Highway 80. Roads to the event will be marked. On the 19th there is the open bench show for both hunting and non-hunting dogs. The mornings of the 20-22 the Running Dog Bench Show will see the hounds hunting from first light to about noon. Hunters will be camping on the ranch, but food will be available for non-cooks. There is no charge for watching.
